

Charlie Chimp wants to know!

A workbook for children who have a special person in the hospice

Hi, my name is Charlie Chimp and I live at the hospice!

Sue Ryder

palliative, neurological and bereavement support

I live here in the hospice.
Can you find me? When you do, draw a picture of me in the space below.

I want to know more about you...

What is your name?

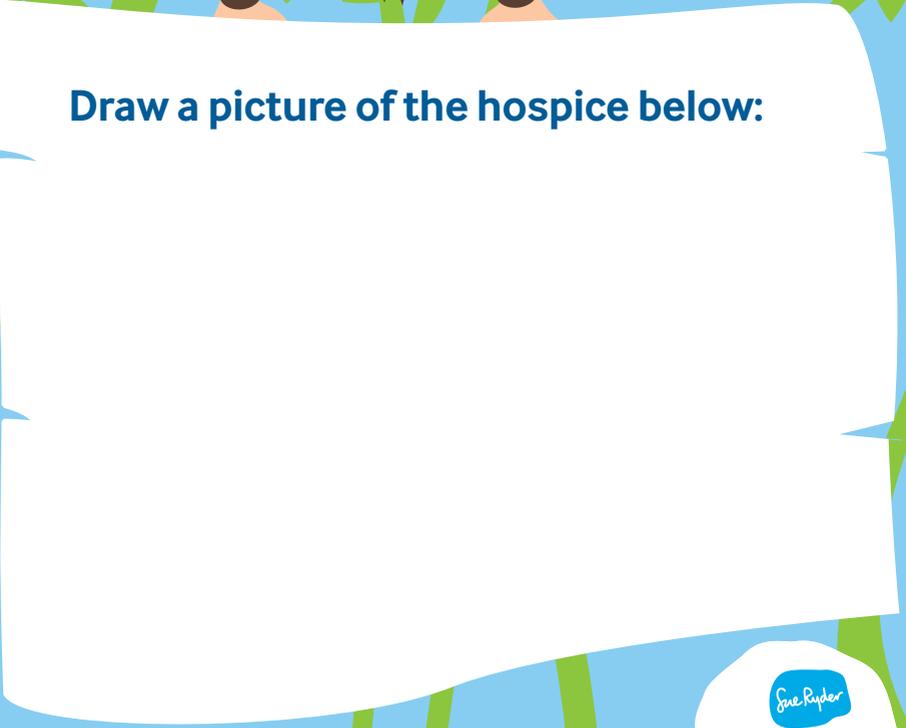

How old are you?

Do you go to school?

What is the name of your school?

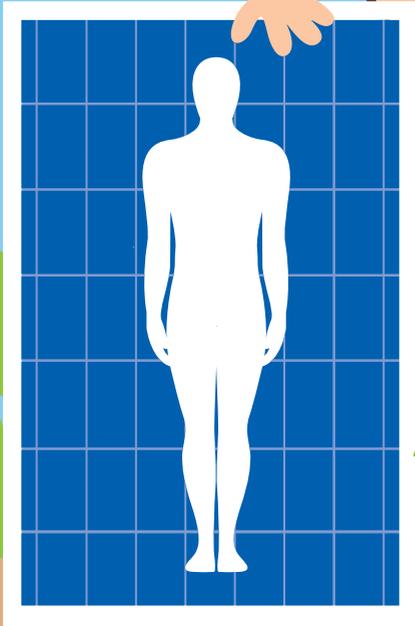

Draw a picture of the hospice below:

You have a special person staying in the hospice. What is their name?

Can you tell me what a hospice is?

Charlie Chimp knows that the special person staying in the hospice is not very well.
Can you tell him what is wrong?

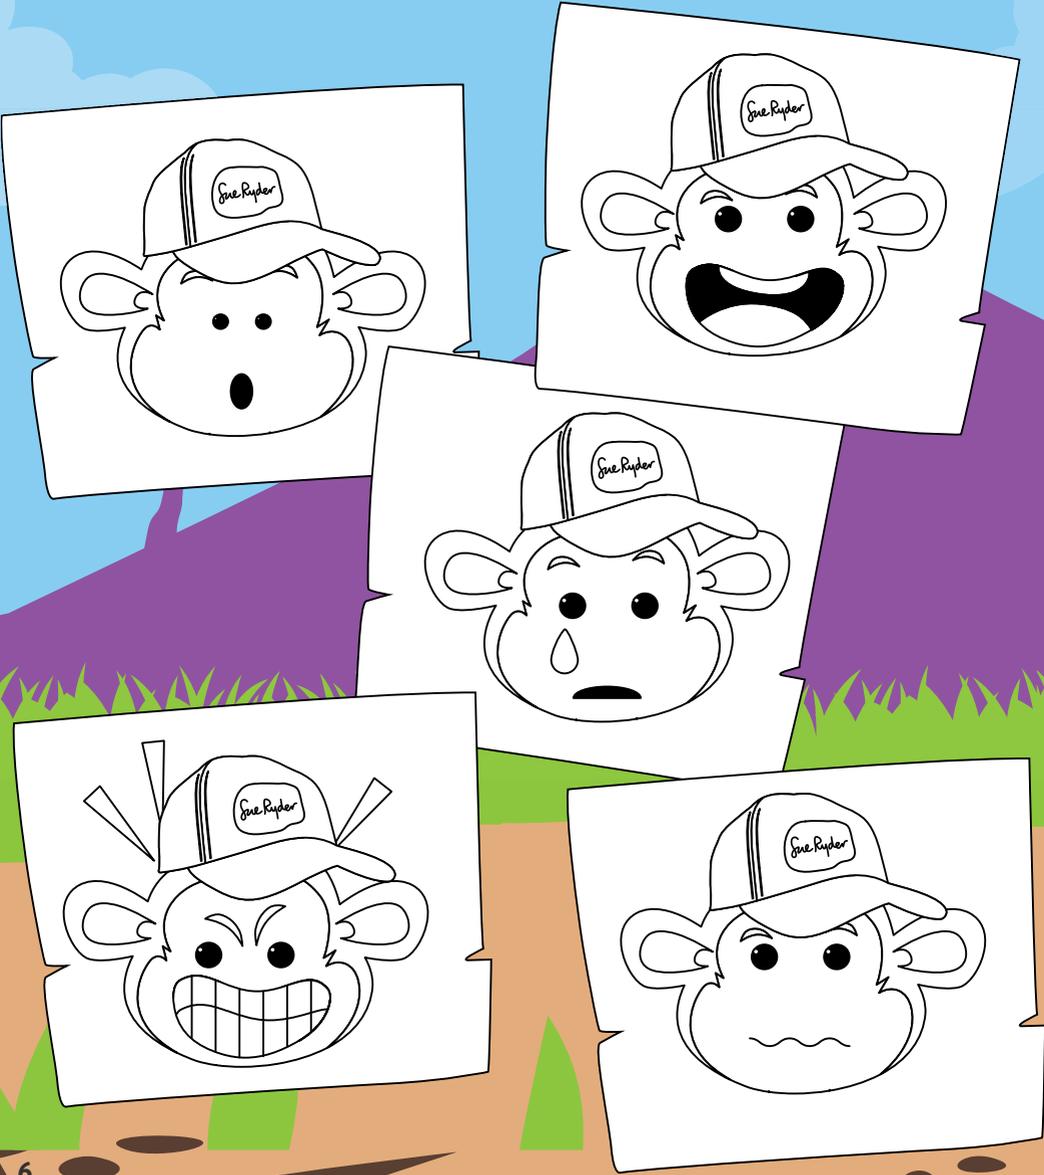

Mark the bit of their body which is ill

Charlie Chimp knows that you might have lots of different feelings about what is happening to your special person.

Which faces show how you feel? Colour them in.

Do you have a photograph of your special person to stick here?
If not you can draw them.

Draw around the outline of your hand and in each finger write the name of someone who you feel you can go and talk to if you need to:

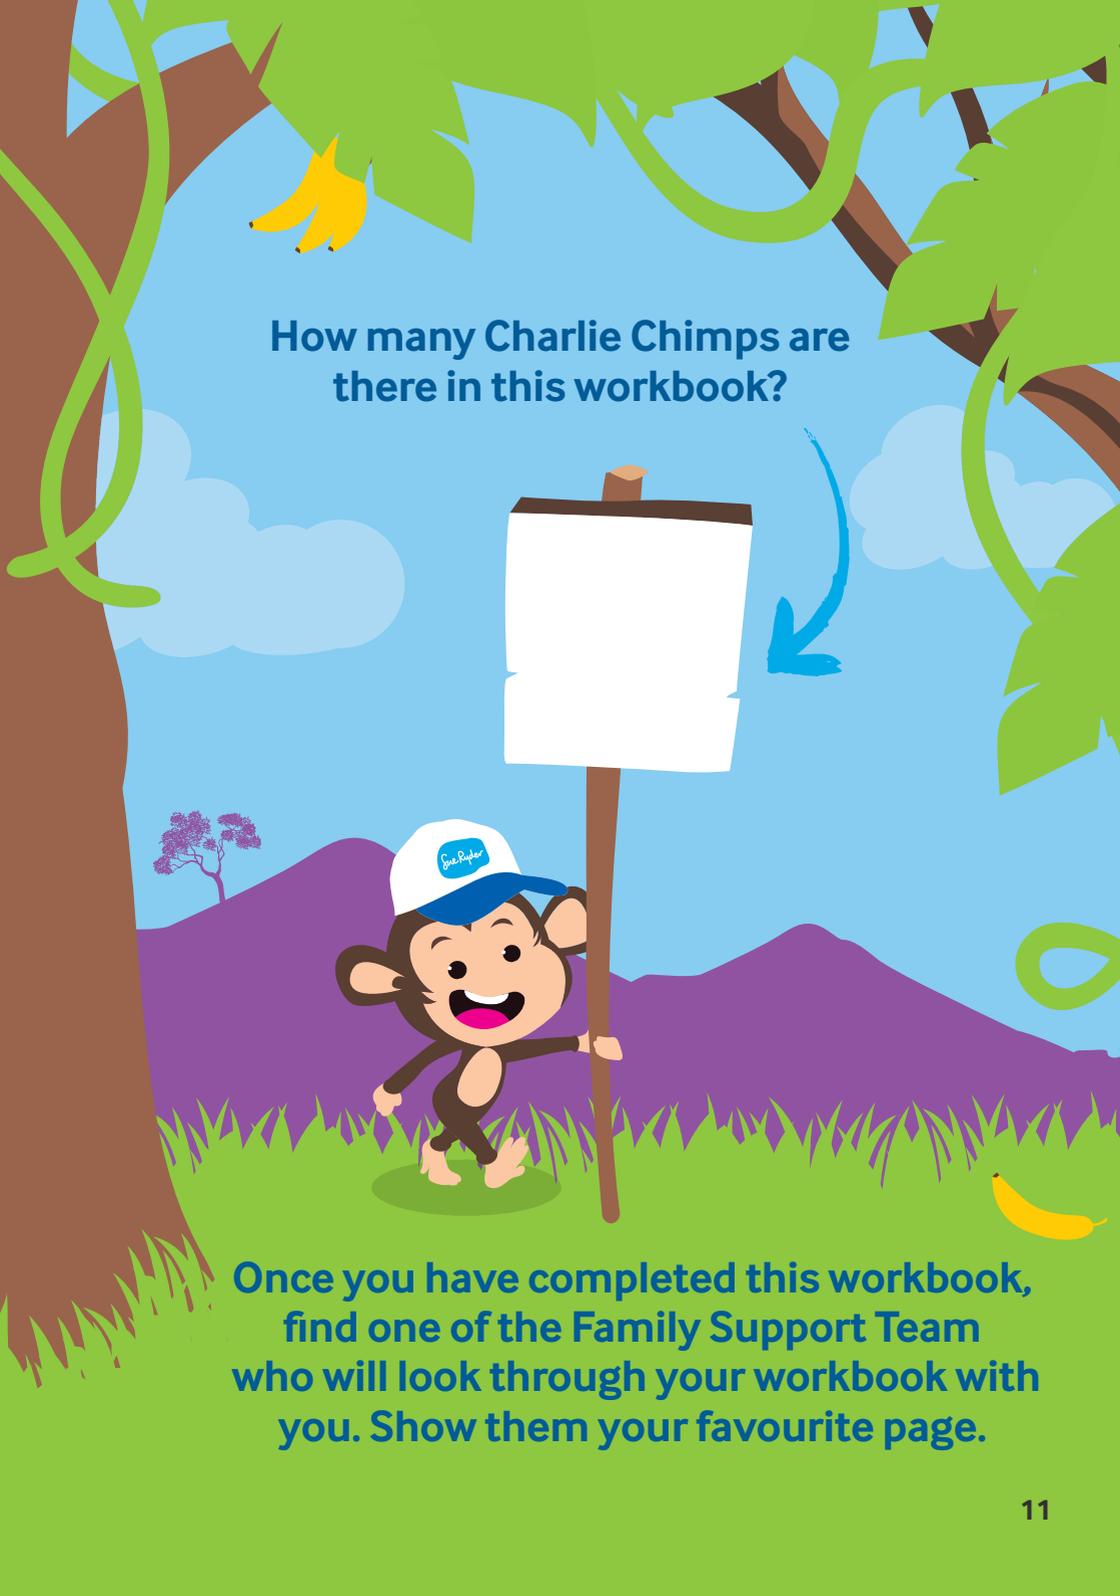

In the hospice there are lots of people working to help make your special person feel more comfortable.

Can you find out the names of four people and ask them what they do? Get them to write their names down and ask them for a sticker for this book.

Tell Charlie Chimp what you have been doing today

How many Charlie Chimps are there in this workbook?

Once you have completed this workbook, find one of the Family Support Team who will look through your workbook with you. Show them your favourite page.

There when it matters

Sue Ryder supports people through the most difficult times of their lives. Whether that's a terminal illness, the loss of a loved one or a neurological condition – we're there when it matters.

For over 65 years our doctors, nurses and carers have given people the compassion and expert care they need to help them live the best life they possibly can. We take the time to understand what's important to people and give them choice and control over their care. For some this may mean specialist care in one of our centres, whilst others might need support in their own home.
